ENTREX PCI INDEX CITES UNIGUEST OF NASHVILLE, TENN.
WITH A TOP GROWTH AWARD

Internet kiosk provider grows 103% in February 2009

Chicago, Ill. – June 5 –Uniguest, a provider of Internet kiosks in hotels, medical facilities and apartment complexes across the country, has been recognized as a high-growth private company by the Entrex Private Company Index (PCI), a benchmarking index that measures the monthly revenue performance of private companies in North America.

The Entrex PCI gave Uniguest its monthly Top Growth Award for February '09, based on the company's 103 percent increase in revenue over the same month in 2008.

Uniguest's CEO Shawn Thomas said, "Today's economy has given companies like ours—with little debt, strong cash flow, and set infrastructure—the opportunity to grow through acquisitions, as well as organic growth."

Stephen H. Watkins, CEO of Entrex, Chicago-based sponsor of the PCI, said that private companies, like Uniguest and others on the Index, are growing despite the recession.

"Uniguest is in a unique position of being able to put Internet services at the fingertips of people who are traveling, visiting patients in long-term care facilities, and in apartment complexes," said Stephen H. Watkins, Entrex CEO and founder.

The Entrex PCI issues this Top Growth Award to one company a month, and also presents an award to the Top Ten Growth Companies each quarter.
