

Print from your Mobile Device to One of Uniguest's Remote Printing-Enabled Automated PC's

HITEC Attendees and hotel guests throughout the U.S. can use their mobile device to send print jobs to remote printer-enabled PC workstations supported by Uniguest.

Nashville, TN - June 22, 2007- Uniguest is expanding the remote printing capability that has traditionally been for laptop users to now allowing printing of emails and email attachments from any mobile device that has email service. By integrating remote printing into its automated PC workstations found in hotels throughout the U.S., Uniguest's users can print emails, email attachments, and documents with ease. The service is being provided and demonstrated for HITEC attendees in Orlando, FL June 25-28 at Uniguest's Booth - 1166.

"More and more travelers are requesting the need to print from different mobile devices," says Uniguest Founder and current CEO Shawn Thomas. "With travelers having access to email and email attachments via their cellular phone or mobile device, it is creating a new trend that requires more access to printing. By integrating remote printing technology into our service, our national footprint of automated PC's is quickly becoming a new place for mobile device printing hotspots. We strongly urge HITEC attendees to test the service. It is simple, easy to use, and is certainly something travelers are looking for."

Uniguest services over 2,000 automated PC workstations at over 1,500 hotels throughout the U.S. Many already have the remote printing technology built in. A feature of the remote printing capability is that a user can print a document to a remote printing-enabled PC even if they are not physically onsite where the PC/printer is located. In the example of email printing, each printer is assigned a unique email address. A user simply forwards their email to the email address of the printer and shortly thereafter they will receive an access code to use when retrieving the print job from the PC. They can send the email from the airport in Tennessee and pick it up when they arrive at the hotel in Los Angeles.

"To provide remote printing capabilities, Uniguest has partnered with leading remote printing technology companies," continues Shawn. "As an applications integrator, we work with several different technologies to provide our 'total' solution and wrap that up in the final solution that is made available within our automated PC workstations. Remote printing is one part of the total solution and new features are added constantly."

"Uniguest is the ideal channel partner to deliver on the vision of true mobile printing to the hospitality industry," says PrinterOn™ Vice President of Sales and Marketing Ken Noreikis. "Uniguest is a Premier Strategic partner for PrinterOn™ and we continue to see major growth through this ideal commercial relationship."

Several hotel chains in the U.S. have made remote printing a part of their hotel standards and the list is growing. This helps to build brand loyalty and brand advantages. For information on Uniguest's products and services, including adding remote printing, please visit www.uniguest.com, email info@uniguest.com, or call 866-398-8729.

HITEC ATTENDEES: If you are planning on attending HITEC, try this service now. Simply forward an email, with or without an attachment, from your mobile device or PC to the following email address. 763358229@printspots.com You will receive a Release code via email. Visit Uniguest's Booth 1166 to retrieve your document. (If you forward an email with no attachment, you will receive one Release Code. If you forward an email with one or more attachments, you will receive a Release Code for the email body and one for each attachment).

Be sure to visit Uniguest at HITEC June 25-28 in Orlando, BOOTH 1166

About Uniguest

Uniguest is a technology installation and support company specializing in the deployment and support of automated public PC workstations. Industries covered are: Apartment complexes, timeshares, libraries, retail, hospitality, and more

Contact:

Uniguest
Shawn Thomas
1940 Elm Hill Pike
Nashville, TN 37210
info@uniguest.com
866.398.8729